Section A: Successful Local Bids

A year-long construction and landscaping project to rejuvenate the UK's only surviving Georgian Pleasure Garden has begun in Bath.

Sydney Gardens, a favourite spot of Jane Austen dating from 1795, will benefit from a new large play area for all ages, improved tennis courts and a new Community Pavilion in a major project joint-funded by The National Lottery Heritage Fund and The National Lottery Community Fund.

Conservation work will be carried out on the key listed buildings, the Temple of Minerva and Loggia and the Edwardian iron toilet facilities will be restored.

Bath & North East Somerset Council's parks team is leading the refurbishment project, named Sydney Gardens: a 21st Century Pleasure Garden, with all design and contractor teams based in Bath or within the South West.

The works include:

- Sand, water play and natural features for young children and new play equipment
- Basketball hoops, panna football and table tennis
- Resurfaced and re-marked tennis courts
- Conversion of the existing toilet block into a Community Pavilion, including an accessible toilet facing the park and a specialist Changing Places toilet for disabled people and their carers, funded by the City Forum
- Mobile refreshment stands

The new Community Pavilion will complement the existing community-based programmes that run out of the Gardeners Lodge and throughout the park.

The original scheme to provide a single large café kiosk has been altered to offer mobile refreshment stands to make it easier for visitors to follow social distancing.

The parks team and The Friends of Sydney Gardens have been working for the past three years with other organisations including the Holburne Museum, Residents Associations, the Canal & River Trust, Julian House, Age UK Bath and local schools on the project.

Park users may experience some disruption while works are ongoing but as much of the park will remain open as possible. The project is expected to be completed by September 2021.

Councillor Paul Crossley, cabinet member for Community Services, said: "Sydney Gardens is a remarkable historic location and a huge asset for our communities. Spending time outdoors and being active are so beneficial for our physical and mental health. It's exciting that this project to refurbish and restore the gardens is now underway and I look forward to seeing residents and visitors enjoying the improved facilities."

Stuart McLeod, Director London & South at The National Lottery Heritage Fund, said: "We're delighted to support this project to refurbish and conserve Sydney Gardens. Thanks to National Lottery players, the local community will be able to enjoy the benefits of a range of new facilities at this important heritage site."

Covid 19 Grants Programme - Voice4Change England	This fund is for Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic (BAME) community groups and organisations, working to deliver COVID-19 services in England. This grants programme is designed to help tackle the disproportionate impact of COVID 19 on BAME communities. The grants programme has three sections: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Delivering COVID 19 services. Groups can apply for help with current costs, if their funding has been affected by the pandemic.</li> <li>• Delivering mental health and well-being services, particularly to those who have been further impacted by COVID 19</li> <li>• Delivering sports activities to tackle BAME inequalities and help with the impact of COVID 19 including well-being initiatives</li> </ul> This programme is open to all BAME led community groups and organisations, working primarily with BAME communities. In this context, BAME includes white minority communities other than white British e.g. Polish, Lithuanian etc., as well as communities that are Black, Asian, Chinese, African and Middle Eastern etc. Eligible groups must be not-for-profit, or with a clearly ethical main purpose. The programme is designed for smaller BAME community group applications: from groups that have the greatest impact on their communities. This means that for any organisation with an annual income of over £200,000 to succeed, it would need to be an exceptional and extraordinary project. Newly started community groups are eligible to apply, particularly those that have been set up in response to the pandemic. The programme will provide community organisations with emergency funding to deal with emerging issues in the community, as a result of the continuing threat of coronavirus, and the need for self-isolation, and potential for further exacerbation of loneliness and isolation. Grants between £5000 and £10,000 will be considered. We aim for the process to take between 10 and 15 working days. They will use the information you have provided to process your application for a grant and to administer any grant awarded. They may request evidence to confirm information given on the form, including obtaining information about you from other organisations to make sure the information is accurate; prevent or detect crime; and protect the funds they administer.

	Awards will be given to projects that can clearly describe beneficiaries' needs, how these has been affected by COVID 19, and what the applicant organisation can deliver to address these needs. Project descriptions will need to show how the organisation can deliver clear and measurable benefits. The deadline is 3rd November 2020. https://voice4change-england.com/covid-19-grants-programme/

The British & Foreign School Society (BFSS) provides grants to UK-based registered charities for projects that improve access to education or improve the quality of education for vulnerable and/or deprived children and young people aged 25 and under. BFSS supports work that aims to improve the educational outcomes and life chances of young carers and 'children looked after' under the age of 25 living in the UK. Applications must be evidence based, new and innovative interventions with an emphasis on evaluation and the intention that the intervention will be scaled up or replicated if successful. Applying charities should have an annual income of at least £5,000 and less than £ 3 million.

The following two funding streams are available for new or pilot projects (funding is not available for existing schemes):

1. UK projects - BFSS has recently narrowed its focus and will only consider applications to improve the educational outcomes and life chances of young carers and looked-after children for the foreseeable future. Grants of between £30,000 and £100,000 are available for projects of 1-5 years (maximum £30,000 per year for multi-year projects). Grants can be used for projects which:

- Improve educational outcomes - including supporting these children and young people to attend and engage in mainstream school life, increasing the number of education professionals able to understand their needs, and improving their access to out-of-school support.*
- Improve life chances - including improving support for these young people (aged 16-25) to access further education, employment or training opportunities and improving support for them to remain engaged with these opportunities.*

2. International projects - BFSS supports projects to improve the quality, sustainability, and access to education for young people within international marginalised and deprived communities. Grants of between £5,000 and £60,000 are available for projects of 1 to 3 years (maximum £20,000 per year for multi-year projects). Grants can be used for projects which:

- Improve access to education - including increasing the number of educational opportunities, especially for girls, (including construction of classrooms or latrines); increasing the number of qualified teachers trained in inclusive, non-discriminatory practices; and improving community attitudes to educating children who are often excluded or overlooked.*
- Improve quality of education - including improving the quality of teaching and pedagogy; improving access to extracurricular support; improving access to progressive opportunities, including STEM and IT education; and increasing child-friendly resources.*
- Improve the sustainability of education projects - including educational projects with integrated community management or ownership, self-generating income, and minimising of environmental impact.*

BFSS is particularly interested in receiving applications for projects that:

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Enhance the opportunities and reduce the barriers for girls to access education</li> <li>• Re-establish education where the provision of education has suffered from conflict or natural disaster.</li> <li>• Seek to directly address the impact of coronavirus/COVID-19 on these young people and which work to close the disadvantage gap that has likely widened as a result of the pandemic.</li> </ul> BFSS will fund between 25% to 100% of the total project costs but will give preference to projects with some degree of matched funding. The UK and International programmes each have a two-stage application process, as follows: Stage 1: applicants must first submit a short application form, which is available to complete online on the BFSS website. Stage 2: shortlisted applicants will be invited to submit a full application. £500m Film and TV Productions Restart Scheme open to registration for UK productions.	Funding to compensate UK film and TV productions after they have restarted, and only where costs are then incurred due to delays or abandonment as a result of Coronavirus. UK Film and TV Productions can receive compensation from the £500 million scheme for future COVID-19-related losses including filming delays from illness among cast and crew. It is expected the Film and TV Production Restart Scheme will support over 40,000 jobs across one of the country's leading creative sectors by ensuring planned productions can proceed after a period of disruption due to the pandemic. The funding is available to all productions made by companies where at least half of the production budget is spent in the UK. For example, Mothering Sunday, an independent production filming in the UK and starring Josh O'Connor, Odessa Young, Şöğü Dirisü, Olivia Colman and Colin Firth, is among the productions to have already applied to the Film and TV Restart Scheme. The deadline for productions to register for the scheme and restart shooting has been extended from December 2020 until 28th February 2021 to help more productions access the scheme, reflecting ongoing uncertainty and the continued inability of productions to secure private insurance for coronavirus-related risks. It will be possible to back date any future claims for eligible losses to 28th July 2020 when the scheme was first announced.

	There will be a total cap on claims per production of £5 million, and productions will need to pay an appropriate excess when seeking to claim under the scheme, as well as an appropriate fee when joining the scheme. Productions will also need to purchase insurance to cover non-coronavirus risks to ensure their production is adequately insured. Productions will need to provide evidence that they cannot return to work because of a lack of insurance. For further information, an application form and details of the application process, visit the Marsh Commercial website. https://www.marshcommercial.co.uk/campaigns/film-and-tv-restart-scheme/

Section D: Forthcoming Funds

Name of Fund	Description
B&Q Foundation	B&amp;Q has set up a new foundation, with grants of up to £5,000 available for local charities that support people experiencing bad housing or homelessness, as well as community projects looking to improve their spaces. The B&amp;Q Foundation officially launched on 5th October with an initial fund of £500,000, raised this year to date by B&amp;Q to support charities across the UK. It has already awarded its first grants and is now calling for charities to apply now for the next round of funding, which will be awarded before the end of the year. The Foundation awarded £175,000 in its first round of grants to 39 charities across the UK, ranging from homelessness and abuse charities, to children’s hospices and rehabilitation centres. The grants will be used for projects including creating community gardens, redecorating properties, and converting rooms at hostels to additional bedrooms. Catherine Burge, Transformation Director, B&amp;Q and Chair, B&amp;Q Foundation, said: The £500,000 raised this year to date was primarily from the sale of facemasks at B&amp;Q, with all profits going to the B&amp;Q Foundation. B&amp;Q will continue to support the B&amp;Q Foundation by launching further initiatives to raise funds in-store, as well as providing volunteers from its teams and donating products. To find out more and register interest visit: https://www.neighbourly.com/BandQFoundation
The Woodward Charitable Trust General Grants	One-off core funding grants up to £3,000 for small UK charities working in the areas of arts outreach, disability, disadvantaged women and families, isolated children and young people, minority groups and prisoners and ex-offenders. The Woodward Charitable Trust’s grant-making tends to focus on activities that help improve social inclusion, particularly in the following areas:

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Arts outreach work by local groups involving disadvantaged people.</li> <li>• Children and young people who are isolated, at risk of exclusion or involved in anti-social behaviour and in particular organisations that work to discourage individuals getting involved in gangs or violent behaviour;</li> <li>• Disability projects, which can include rehabilitation and training for people who are either physically or learning disabled as well as charities supporting mental health issues, particularly where it relates to the Trust's priority areas;</li> <li>• Disadvantaged women and their children, covering refuges and domestic violence shelters and groups.</li> <li>• Disadvantaged families including parenting support;</li> <li>• Prisoners and ex-offenders and specifically projects that help the rehabilitation and resettlement of prisoners and/or ex-offenders as well as requests to help prisoners' families;</li> <li>• Projects that promote integration and community cohesion particularly amongst minority groups, refugees and travellers.</li> </ul> Following a review of its grant-making guidelines, from October 2019 the Trust will only fund core costs rather than specific projects in recognition that smaller charities can find core funding hard to come by. UK registered charities with an annual turnover of £200,000 or less may apply for a General (or Small) Grant of up to £3,000. The Trust will also consider funding charitable incorporated organisations and community interest companies. There is an expectation that applicants will have sought and – preferably – secured funding from other sources. Applications should be made via the Trust's online application form. This is available on the Trust's website, where further information and guidance about available grants can also be found. Please note that the next General (Small) Grants round opens on Wednesday 9th November. The application form will become available once the programme opens. http://woodwardcharitabletrust.org.uk/general_applications/

Item	Description
Updated Charity Commission Covid-19 guidance	The Charity Commission has updated its Covid-19 guidance for the charity sector. The guidance aims to help with running your charity during the coronavirus outbreak. The updated sections refer to AGMs and holding meetings online. Charitable companies and Charitable Incorporated Organisations (CIOs) can hold AGMs and other members' meetings online - this has been made possible by the Corporate Insolvency and Governance Act 2020. The section in the Corporate Insolvency and Governance Act 2020 on holding meetings online has been extended from 30 September to 30 December 2020. For other types of meetings, or for any other type of charity, trustees need to check if their charity's governing document allows them to hold meetings online or by telephone. This temporary amendment is in the Corporate Insolvency and Governance Act 2020 and also applies to exempt charities that are community benefit or friendly societies. It was extended from 30 September to 30 December 2020 but may be extended again if the government thinks this is needed. We will update with any changes if they happen. Note: temporary laws allowing charitable companies and CIOs to postpone AGMs and other members' meetings end on 30 September. These charities can use the above advice. https://www.gov.uk/guidance/coronavirus-covid-19-guidance-for-the-charity-sector

Consultation	Description
South West Cancer Alliance – views from cancer patients wanted	The South West Cancer Alliance have asked if we can use our networks and contacts to reach out to people with cancer in your communities to better understand how greater use of remote consultations has impacted on people living with cancer. During the Covid-19 pandemic a lot has changed for cancer patients in the way they attend appointments with their cancer teams. Whereas in the past most consultations involved a hospital visit now a lot more are now made by

	phone or video. The South West Cancer Alliance Patient Representatives are keen to understand from a patient's perspective what this is like. Some patients have enjoyed being able to talk to their cancer team from home, but others have found the experience less good. They are seeking views from patients living in Somerset, Wiltshire, the former Avon area and Gloucestershire. They have created a questionnaire asking for patients' feedback about these experiences. The information that patients give will be anonymous and only used by the NHS. The questionnaire should take about 5 minutes to complete. There is no deadline and you can find it here.
Views wanted by Youth Endowment Fund	The Youth Endowment Fund is looking for people and organisations working to keep children safe from violence to help it set its priorities for the next three years. Founded with an endowment from the Home Office, the charity will invest £200 million over ten years to find the most effective ways to prevent children and young people from becoming involved in violence. It launched its ten-year strategy on 7th October and is asking for input to help decide on the areas of focus for 2021-2023. The Youth Endowment Fund will also be talking to children and young people who have experience of being involved in violence to further help it understand how it can make the most difference in the next three years. The call is part of an ongoing commitment set out in the charity's strategy to work with partners as it funds promising work, works out what really makes a difference to reducing violence and making sure this knowledge is put into practice in communities across England and Wales. Once people have filled in a brief online form, the Fund will get in touch to let them know how they can get involved – such as through joining an online roundtable event, filling in a survey or meeting with a member of its team for an informal chat. It is keen to know how the Youth Endowment Fund can help people and organisations keep children and young people safe, views on its priorities for future grant rounds and how it can better support applicants. The Fund will also ask about the kind of evidence they use when making decisions about their work with children and young people, the sort of evidence that would be most useful and how they would like to access it. The Youth Endowment Fund will be talking to people over the next three months to decide what its priorities are, before producing a report in early 2021 on the decision made for the theme of its next grant round. You can submit your views via this online form: https://us20.list-manage.com/survey?u=9d9a7f77819a4e9dfafe6ab0a&amp;id=584e7b5902

			Grants can cover capital costs, such as the adaptation of buildings and the purchase of equipment, and/or project-related costs; for example, salaries and some other revenue costs. This can include the training of staff and/or volunteers, hire of buildings and/or equipment, and the promotion and marketing of new activities. Grants are available for innovative, impactful projects that will enable people, organisations and communities to flourish in life following the COVID-19 lockdown, building resilience and encouraging hope. They are all autonomous and each has a particular history of its own, shaped by the place and people who form it. Activities include services and discussion groups, conferences and events, and a wide variety of ways in which service is offered to the local community eg food banks, street pastors, youth work, lunch clubs, festivals, night shelters, chaplaincy etc. Please note that organisations are not requested to apply for a specific grant amount and instead are asked to provide information on the cost of the project and a high-level budget. Funding for Orchards	The People's Trust for Endangered Species	https://ptes.org/campaigns/traditional-orchard-project/orchard-grants/	This grant scheme is specifically set up to improve and protect traditional orchards as biodiverse habitats in the long term. For this reason the grant is open to any owner or manager of an existing traditional orchard. This could be a community orchard, an orchard you manage, or one that you own yourself. If you do not own the orchard yourself, make sure you have the landowner's permission before applying for the grant. To apply, you need to be 18 or over and have filled in a short orchard owner's questionnaire, which can be downloaded from the website. This gives the Trust a better picture of the condition of traditional orchards, enabling more effective, targeted action to restore and protect these vital wildlife hotspots. Funds can be used for rootstock and grafting materials or trees (four per quarter acre)	The fund will remain open until it has all been allocated. Revitalising Trusts	The Charity Commission is calling for charities with inactive funds to join its Revitalising Trusts programme. Since its launch in 2018 the programme has ‘revitalised’ £32 million from charities that have either had no income or expenditure over the last 5 years or have spent less than 30% of their total income over the last 5 years to help good causes. It has recently secured funding from DCMS until 2021 and is seeking to reach more inactive charities and trusts in the year ahead. Once an organisation has been identified as dormant, the Commission gives the trustees the option of receiving support to help them get back up and running, or having funds redeployed to causes in line with their aims of the dormant charity or the trust transferred to a local community foundation to be managed for the long term benefit of local communities. So far, Revitalising Trusts has removed 179 charities from the register, transferring their funds to similar charities, local Community Foundations or UK Community Foundations, and revitalised 26 charities. Charities falling within the programmes criteria and seeking support in helping to get their charity operating again can contact the Revitalising Trusts Programme for advice and support by e-mail to:	https://www.gov.uk/guidance/get-help-for-your-inactive-or-ineffective-charity

	Its members are also calling on businesses to make donating goods and services a key part of their sustainable development and recovery strategies. They say: “Donations of every type of product and service will help the charity sector weather this storm by saving money and providing essential supplies to those that really need them. We have made 280 connections with companies and are grateful for their support this year, recognising the benefits giving brings for everyone involved. “For those families, households and individuals that have struggled to access food, toiletries, medicine or technology during lockdown, the continued work of the thousands of charities the Product Giving Alliance supports is vital. We make donating easy for companies, as well as giving them the confidence that their stock can achieve real impact. Better Health Campaign	At the end of July 2020, Public Health England launched a major new adult health campaign to seize the opportunity for a national reset moment of health. Nearly two thirds (63%) of adults in the UK are overweight or living with obesity. Gaining weight is often a gradual process that takes place over a number of years and modern life doesn't always make it easy. But this extra weight causes pressure to build up around vital organs, making it harder for the body to fight against diseases like cancer, heart disease and now COVID-19.	https://www.nhs.uk/better-health/

	To improve health and wellbeing, individuals should aim to have a BMI below 25 and above 18.52. NICE recommends that Black, Asian and minority ethnic groups (BAME) should aim to have a BMI below 23 and above 18.5 to avoid risks to health. To support people to live healthier lives, Public Health England's Better Health campaign provides a variety of tools and apps to help people make healthier food choices, become more active and prevent future weight gain. One of these tools is a Weight Loss Plan app, which provides 12 weeks' worth of engaging content that can be personalised and tailored to the goals and needs of the individual. Later down the line, support will also be made available to help people quit smoking, cut down their drinking and look after their mental health.

The Campaign to End Loneliness - The Psychology of Loneliness	In July 2020, The Campaign to End Loneliness published a report, 'The Psychology of Loneliness'. It is the first of its kind to look at how we can use approaches from psychology to address loneliness. The campaign comes as a result of the Building Connections Fund, a part of the government's loneliness strategy. The report brings together the research with views and experiences of older people, policy makers, and organisations who work with older people, to look at how loneliness affects individuals, how people think and feel, and how to provide better support for people who feel lonely or are at risk of feeling lonely. The report includes a foreword from Baroness Barran MBE, Minister for Civil Society, in which she states that she is pleased that the report has brought to the fore some aspects of addressing loneliness that are often not spoken about. You can read the full report by using the link to the right.	https://www.campaigntoendloneliness.org/wp-content/uploads/Psychology_of_Loneliness_FINAL_REPORT.pdf

National Directory of Farm and Rural Support Groups	In July 2020, The Prince's Countryside Fund launched its National Directory of Farm and Rural Support Groups. The directory lists 69 regional, national, and membership organisations who can provide support, advice, and guidance to farming and rural communities. The directory signposts to support for farmers who might be in crisis. Poor mental health is on the rise in rural and farming communities, so making support groups easy to find and accessible is vital. Originally created by YANA, a farming mental health charity working across Norfolk, Suffolk, and Worcestershire, the directory has been updated to include 21 new support groups.	https://www.princescountrysidefund.org.uk/downloads/research/support-groups-directory-2020-web.pdf
Complaints about charities to the Charity Commission	The Charity Commission is urging charities to “listen and learn” when issues are brought to them. The regulator has reviewed complaints and reports about charities that fall below the threshold for regulatory action, to help it, and charities, learn from the matters raised by the public. The review is part of the Commission’s commitment, set out in its 2018-2023 strategy, to ensure no complaint is ignored. All complaints about charities contribute to the Commission’s assessment of risks facing charities, even where no direct regulatory action is required. The Commission says the review revealed that most complaints come from people invested in a charity – including beneficiaries, supporters, volunteers and trustees – and relate to issues that affect them personally. The Commission says that “it isn’t the case that people only complain about a few large household name charities”.	https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/every-complaint-matters-a-thematic-review-of-complaints-about-charities

e-Learning to help people living in cold homes	Around three million people in England live in homes that are too cold. Public Health England has worked with Health Education England to develop the Helping People Living in Cold Homes e-learning programme. Aimed at health and care staff who undertake home visits, the resource provides information on local services that can assist people living in cold homes, such as installing insulation, improving heating systems or helping reduce energy bills. It also helps people spot the signs of a cold home – including less obvious ones. With this information, staff can have a conversation with people whose health may be affected by being too cold at home and signpost them to the relevant local services.	https://www.e-lfh.org.uk/e-learning-to-help-people-living-in-cold-homes-2/

Giving Feedback to Funder (from an article by Emma Beeston)	It is difficult to give honest feedback to funders about their application processes. At an event in the UK this summer, 50 fund raisers were asked what annoys them most about application processes. Their responses are summarized below:

- Word counts – this was the most frequent response e.g. “word restrictions along with wanting complex answers”.
- A lack of response – whether this was a lack of feedback, not being available to discuss bids or not hearing back e.g. “not getting a ‘no’ just hearing nothing”
- The sheer length, complexity and diversity of information requested e.g. “the large amount of information you have to give e.g. 3 references”.
- Being asked for unnecessary information – bugbears were being asked to submit documents available online via charity commission website and being asked financial questions that are covered in the accounts.
- Poor design of the process - e.g. “unwieldy application forms”, “badly formatted word documents”, “saying they fund core costs but the application form is geared for projects”, “repetitive questions” and “when the IT doesn’t work”.
- Lack of clarity – e.g. “when a funder gives you very little information about what they like to fund” which is made worse when they won’t talk to you to clarify their criteria and requirements.”

Code of Fundraising Practice	A new version of the Code of Fundraising Practice came into effect in October 2019. The changes are designed to make it easier for fundraisers, charities and third-party organisations to understand the standards expected of them when fundraising. It is also designed to be easier for the public to navigate. The changes include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Consolidation of the former code, rulebooks and legal appendices with all standards now in the one code</li> </ul>	https://www.fundraisingregulator.org.uk/code

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Restructuring of the standards into three parts to help users more easily identify which standards apply depending on the type of fundraising they do</li> <li>• Clarification of where there are differences in law in England and Wales, Northern Ireland and Scotland</li> <li>• Clearer language, following an independent review by the Plain English campaign, which gave the code a Crystal Mark standard</li> </ul> Complaints will continue to be considered against the version of the code in effect at the time of the incident. The new code will then be used as the basis for making decisions about any incidents that take place from October onwards.

Airbnb invites charities to run social impact experiences to fundraise	Accommodation-sharing service Airbnb is inviting charities to offer ‘social impact experiences’ through its platform to encourage travellers to engage in social causes. The experiences are both educational and a new way for the charity to raise funds. Airbnb will promote the experiences offered by charities via its site. Travellers visiting a particular location will see these experiences listed for them as a relevant local attraction to make their stay even more rewarding. Experiences are open to anyone, not just those who have booked accommodation through Airbnb.	https://www.airbnb.co.uk/b/social-impact-host

Indeed, many charities will already offer something similar, like a guided tour of their theatre, a cycle-ride around their wetlands, a meet the research scientists event, or a visit to their animal sanctuary.

How to check for fake banknotes	The Bank of England has a series of resources, including short films, designed to help businesses and retailers to fight fraud by checking that banknotes are genuine. This should be useful for charities, charity shops and any individuals with responsibility for counting and checking donations.  Two new films focus on the security features of the £20 and £50 notes. According to the Bank of England, these are “the two most commonly counterfeited notes”.	https://www.bankofengland.co.uk/banknotes/counterfeit-banknotes/how-to-check-your-banknotes

Reading the Funding Guidelines: Why You Don't and Why You Should - Advice from Emma Beeston	Ask any funder their top reason for turning down an application and they will say “because the applicant did not read the guidance”. This has sadly been the case for the many years, despite all the training sessions and guides out there for fundraisers. Which begs the question: why don't people read the guidance? Or if they do read it, why do they go ahead and apply anyway even though they don't fit with the criteria. These are the 7 reasons I have come up with. They fall into three categories: one is excusable once; three are operational and the final three relate to a mindset. Not found: People don't always know to look for any guidance. If someone is new to bid writing, then this is fair enough. Hopefully this will be pointed out to them early on and then there is no excuse for making this mistake twice.

Unclear: People can struggle with reading and so it is up to funders to help with this – after all they are trying to fund work that achieves social change not testing literacy. The guidance is not always clear or consistent and can be jargon-rich. Some funders help by being available to talk to potential applicants or using films and webinars to explain their criteria and funding process.

Too tedious: Reading lists of we do fund ... and we don't fund ... do not make for riveting reading. WikiHow has a whole list of ways to tackle boring books and whilst I find their line “think of getting through a boring book as training for life” an incredibly depressing thought, the suggestions they have to take breaks, read away from interruptions, when most awake etc. are all useful.

Too time consuming: Of course, everyone is busy and finding time to read is hard. But this is a classic case of spend time now to save it later. You will save yourself an awful lot of wasted effort if you find out that you are not eligible and there is no point applying.

Disregarded: Treating applications as the end goal can be perpetuated by actual targets set for fundraisers for applications made. Or it can come from the sense that the Trustees and others will judge you if you have not populated a pipeline with many bids. The focus should always be on being effective – so your applications have a good chance of success – and not just volume.

Overlooked: The complacency effect happens where you think you know the guidance already or that you were funded before so must still fit. This can be a mistake where criteria and priorities have changed.

Ignored: Fundraisers are usually wonderfully optimistic and resilient souls and so hope sometimes wins over judgment. There is a danger of putting in a speculative application just in case it might be considered and in other cases, passion clouds reality. Because the bid writer is so excited about their work and the difference it makes, they assume that funders will be equally blown away and will make an exception. If you think this applies to you, try a phone call – but only after you've read the guidance.

	Whatever the reason, the advice remains the same – before spending time on writing a bid, you must read the guidance and if you don't fit with the criteria, don't just go ahead and apply anyway. Put your precious time into another application, where you have a much better chance of being funded.

Lloyds Bank launches £500 million Growth Fund	Lloyds Banking Group has opened a £500 million pound loan fund to help British businesses finance equipment. Essentially, this is the same £500 million scheme the bank opened a couple of years ago for the agricultural sector, but now its remit has been widened to include manufacturing, construction and transport. The scheme targets small and medium-sized companies which banks froze out of credit following the financial crisis. The bank said the fund will deliver quick access to finance by allowing companies to spread the cost of assets over their lifetime, enabling big investments that don't eat into working capital. The government sees small and medium-sized companies as key to unlocking higher productivity, which has fallen back to below pre-crisis levels this year, and to the success of the UK economy post-Brexit. These businesses have struggled to invest in the decade since the financial crisis as banks have shied away from lending to smaller businesses.	Interested parties can phone either of the Bank's two 24-hour helpline/contact numbers: 0345 300 0000 or 01733 347 007. Fundraising Advice – Hold a Fast Party	The idea behind a Fast Party is not to plough through the buffet at a party as quickly as possible, but to 'fast' – as in abstaining from eating. A Fast Party is actually a non-event, whereby people are invited to a party that isn't going to take place. This type of fundraiser works particularly well with well-known charitable organisations with a strong supporter base either locally or nationally. Guests are asked to go without one meal on a specific date and to contribute the money that would otherwise be spend on the meal to your not-for-profit. The advantage of this fundraising idea is that it:

- Requires very little organising
- Doesn't require a venue
- Has very little financial outlay – all you're paying for is the cost of the invitations (and you could get a sponsor for this in return for a bit of advertising)
- Can be quite easy to obtain sponsorship.

Disadvantages are relatively few. The main drawback is that supporters who may already be contributing to the charity or cause may feel 'put upon' by another request for help.

It's also a fundraising idea you should be wary of overusing. It's okay as a witty, fun one-off activity, but at best this should be an annual event and possibly take place even less frequently.

To organise a Fast Party, find a couple or several friends to help write a Guest List and put together an eye-catching, well-designed and witty invitation (for example, 'Mr and Mrs Smith have pleasure in not requesting your company.....' or 'Guests of Honour will not include...").

You could also print an unappetising menu on the back of the invitation to show 'participants' that they've had a lucky escape. Include a vegetarian option.

Print the invitations on good quality card and include a self-addressed envelope or set up an online payment system so that participants can make their financial contribution easily – or you could just pop round to a supporters' house to collect their donation.

Make sure that cheques are made out to the charity or cause rather than to an individual, which could lead you open to criticism or, worse, accusations of fraud. Tickets to the party could be £5 per person, £8 per couple or £10 per family, whatever you think is appropriate for your supporters.

	The advantage for ‘participants’ is that they don’t have to do anything to participate. A Fast Party enables them to show their support for a cause at a relatively low cost without having to spend much effort, plan, or use up valuable time and effort. In terms of return, most Fast Parties report at least 50% of invitees making a donation. Some may not wish to participate but may still be willing to make a donation. Finally, always send a short thank-you letter, telling donors how the funding will be used and the difference it will make!

Fundraising – Auctions of Promises	Auctions of Promises tend to be most successful when held on the back of another event when equipment and furniture is already available.

A good Auction of Promises (50 lots takes about an hour to get through if you have a good auctioneer) can often raise £1,000 or more.

An Auction of Promises is held on identical lines to a conventional auction, but the 'lots' are quite different. Each lot is a 'Promise', usually written on individual slips of paper and signed and dated by the person offering the promise. Promises are secured by asking around your contacts, private companies or prominent individuals in the community, such as the Mayor or your local MP. It's a good idea to have a wide selection of lots, for example, handmade goods, offers of help, vouchers, special opportunities and donated items. Example of promises can include:

- Theatre tickets
- Having your car(s) cleaned
- A free round of golf
- A week's holiday in a country cottage or an apartment overseas
- A free meal at a local restaurant

To organise an Auction of Promises, follow these steps:

1. Get together a small group of helpers or form a committee;
2. Decide on a date and a venue and apply for an occasional licence if you intend to run a bar, which could usefully increase the amount of funding raised;
3. Find an auctioneer who will ideally volunteer their time. If you can get one, a professional auctioneer will bring a sense of authenticity as well as ensuring the auction moves along at a brisk pace. If someone other than an experienced auctioneer wants to do it. It's essential they have a presence;
4. Proactively seek donations and promises. Make sure you get specific commitments from people or companies. Type up the promises and get them signed before the donor can pull out! Make it clear the offer is available for a limited period only, for instance 6 months or a year.
5. Prepare a catalogue showing images and the running order of all the lots which can be shown online or handed out at the event. It can help if you publish a reserve price for each lot to give participants an idea of where to begin bidding.

	To keep things interesting: Include a Surprise Auction: keep 2-3 popular lots in unmarked envelopes. Announce that the next lot is one of the unmarked promises, but bidders won't know which one it is. Participants make 'blind bids' and the successful bidder receives a surprise (it's important not to announce the lots until all have been auctioned). Include a Sealed Bid Auction: this is where you display the lots and make pens, papers and envelopes available. Bidders place their bids in sealed envelopes and place them in a box. The winners are announced at the end of the Promises Auction. It's worth bearing in mind that Sealed Bid Auctions don't generally raise as much funding. At the end of the Auction, try to encourage all successful bidders to pay before they leave. Thank the auctioneer with a bottle of wine and flowers. Make sure you have sufficient volunteers to clear up. After the event, thank your donors, volunteers and successful bidders and let them know how much has been raised and how the funds will be used. Ensure the Auction is reported in the local and social media (this can also be done in real-time during the event), together with the amount raised. An Auction of Promises is a great PR opportunity because you can gain additional publicity as people redeem their promises throughout the 6 months or year. Finally, think about making it an annual event to develop your commercial and public supporter base!

Gift Aid	When people donate to a registered charity or a Community Amateur Sports Club (CASC), it's from an income they've usually already been taxed on. Charities can therefore reclaim the equivalent of the basic rate of tax, increasing the value of the donation made. For every £1 donated, the charity can claim an extra 25p, so each £1 can become £1.25 for the cause.	https://www.gov.uk/claim-gift-aid/what-you-can-claim-it-on

	There are special rules for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Funds from sponsored challenges (for example: overseas treks or marathons);</li> <li>• Charity membership fees;</li> <li>• Church collections;</li> <li>• Selling goods on behalf of individuals (for example through a charity shop);</li> <li>• Charity events or to view charity property;</li> <li>• Charity auctions;</li> <li>• Volunteer expenses donated back to a charity or CASC; and</li> <li>• Funds raised through charities involved in running schools</li> </ul> For your contribution to qualify for Gift Aid, you must pay enough UK tax to cover the amount the charity will reclaim. You'll also need to make a Gift Aid declaration if you want the organisation to make the claim, and many charities will include this on their donation forms. The giver must confirm that this is a Gift Aid donation and that they have paid enough UK tax to cover the reclaimed amount. You can make a declaration that covers an individual donation, contributions made during the previous six years and all future gifts to an organisation. If you pay more than the basic rate of tax you can benefit from your donation as well. Donors paying 40 per cent tax can claim back the remaining tax for themselves by requesting a P810 Tax Review, or adding it to a Self Assessment tax return.

Charity Reserves – building resilience	A review by the Charity Commission has shown that less than a quarter of larger charities accurately reported the level of financial reserves they hold in their trustees' annual report. According to the Commission, its findings suggest an incomplete understanding of what reserves are, which it says could lead trustees to make poor decisions about their charity's finances. All registered charities must explain their policy on reserves in their trustees' annual report, and should state the level of reserves held as well as why they are held. Almost all of a sample of 106 charities with an income over £500,000 included at least a reference to their reserves policy in their annual report. However, less than a quarter gave the right reserves figure, based on the information in their accounts. A third of charities failed to include a figure at all, while many trustees appear to believe that reserves are the same thing as total unrestricted funds. As well as the report, the Commission has also published guidance to help charities understand what reserves are and how to develop and report on a reserves policy. It will be sending these to all charities in the sample where there were concerns over the absence or accuracy of the reserves figure in their annual reports.	https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/charities-and-reserves-cc19

Legacy Fundraising	Legacies can be a challenging area for charitable organisations because it can be a difficult and sensitive issue to broach, yet legacies are generally the biggest gifts received by charities from individuals. The Code of Fundraising Practice and its associated Rulebooks for Street, Door and Private Site Fundraising outline the standards expected of all charitable fundraising organisations across the UK. The Code sets out the law and best practice for a range of fundraising techniques. The standards were developed by the fundraising community through the work of the Institute of Fundraising (IoF) and Public Fundraising Association (PFRA), which has now merged with the Institute of Fundraising.	www.RememberaCharity.org.uk
Cyber Security of Charities	The National Centre for Cyber Security (NCSC) has published an assessment of the cyber threats facing UK charities and a guide to help charities protect themselves against malicious cyber activity. The NCSC's Cyber Threat Assessment report has revealed reveals how charities' valuable funds, supporter details and information on beneficiaries are being targeted. The Small Charity Guide outlines easy and low-cost steps to protect from attacks. Charity Governance	Charity trustees need to be able to identify the critical issues – the charity's purposes and plans, its solvency, its resilience and quality of governance – and to be able to review these at regular intervals. The Commission has also included links to guidance that can help trustees access further information on a particular issue.	https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/charity-trustee-meetings-15-questions-you-should-ask/charity-trustee-meetings-15-questions-you-should-ask
